PROTECTING RESIDENTIAL REAL ESTATE

2023 was an unpredictable year in Washington, but NAR's advocacy team stayed focused on protecting and promoting the residential real estate economy and its consumers.

NAR demonstrated the power of REALTOR® advocacy when a government shutdown loomed in the fall – and with it, the potential for a devastating lapse of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP). In response to NAR's all-member call for action, REALTORS® made tens of thousands of contacts with members of Congress and successfully pressed congressional leaders to extend the NFIP.

Continuing the push to make homeownership more accessible, NAR took a stand against the Federal Housing Finance Agency's proposed hikes to loan level price adjustments (LLPAs). NAR testified before the House Financial Services Committee in May about the potential impacts of these upfront fees on borrowers, and as a result of NAR advocacy, the FHFA rescinded a proposed LLPA fee on borrowers with high debt-to-income ratios.

After decades of NAR advocacy, the FHFA also committed to increasing borrower eligibility by adding additional credit scoring models that incorporate positive rental and utility payment history.

NAR fought regulations that would drive housing providers from the market, joining with industry partners in filing an amicus brief urging the Supreme Court to hear two cases challenging a New York rent control law that threatens to exacerbate housing shortages and affordability problems.

Staying on the front lines to safeguard property rights, NAR joined an amicus brief asking the Supreme Court to uphold a property owner's entitlement to their surplus equity. The Court unanimously ruled in the property owner's favor in Tyler vs. Hennepin County.

NAR and its state association partners also championed state-level reforms to advance property rights and fair housing. These efforts have led six states to add new fair housing education requirements to their licensing procedures.

NAR continued to defend members' independent contractor status, spearheading the introduction of new bipartisan legislation to reduce uncertainty and minimize regulatory burdens. NAR also supported a provision of the House-passed CHOICE Arrangement Act that expanded access to association health plans for more Americans, including self-employed real estate professionals.

RPAC 101

My grandfather emigrated to this country seeking greater opportunity. He told me from a young age that homeownership isn't a right but a privilege—and one you have to work hard for. That's why I invest in RPAC: to protect my industry, to protect private property rights for my clients, and to honor my grandfather.

- Tommy Choi // RPAC Participation Council Chair

For more than 50 years, the REALTORS® Political Action Committee (RPAC) has been one of the strongest and most successful advocacy organizations in the nation. And there's one reason for that: REALTORS® like you.

RPAC recognizes that an industry that shies away from politics is an industry whose future is unstable and uncertain. Your voluntary investments in RPAC earn us a seat at the table with legislative and policy decision makers on Capitol Hill, statehouses and city halls across the country. Your continued support and engagement allow us to shape the size, scope and success of the real estate industry for REALTORS® and business, property, and home owners alike. Together, we're protecting the future of real estate in America.

NAR laid out three major advocacy goals for 2023 and achieved meaningful results on all fronts:

- 1. Improve Access to Homeownership, Increase Housing Inventory, Streamline Affordable Housing Programs, and Expand Economic Opportunities
- 2. Ensure Fair Housing for All
- 3. Help Inform Policymaking through NAR Research Products

My family came to the United States at great risk in the early 1960s. In Cuba, they were losing everything – their homes, properties, and businesses – that they had worked for years to build. I invest in RPAC to ensure our lawmakers understand the importance of private property rights. Investing in RPAC is protecting the American Dream.

AFFORDABLE HOUSING SUPPLY OFFENSIVE

NAR kept up the pressure in 2023 to increase housing supply and address affordability constraints.

Following robust advocacy by NAR, the Federal Housing Administration reduced mortgage insurance premiums by 30 basis points, providing needed relief for new and low- to moderate-income buyers.

NAR successfully advocated for legislation to incentivize home sales by doubling the maximum amount of capital gains a homeowner can exclude on the sale of a principal residence and annually adjusting it for inflation. This would unlock a significant segment of previously unavailable inventory.

Thanks to NAR and its coalition partners, two House Ways and Means Committee members introduced a bipartisan bill offering a tax credit to incentivize the conversion of underutilized commercial properties to residential units. This would be a triple win: shoring up the commercial sector, increasing housing supply, and boosting the economy.

NAR also advocated for cost-effective creation of more rental housing and supported a Federal Housing Administration change to raise the threshold dollar amount for large multifamily loans from $75 million to $120 million.

There is no other trade association in Washington like NAR for one reason: our members

We are poised to lead the discussion on housing accessibility, affordability and availability in 2024 like no one else. Together, we'll bring lasting change to the housing sector and help more Americans access the American Dream.

When we stay nonpartisan and issue-focused, everyone wins—our members, consumers and the American economy.
